PENDROY'S OFFER THIRD FLOOR FOR BEST BABY COMPETITION SERVICE

Proprietors of Big Store to Be Host and Hostess to the Little Ones of Entire District, Beginning Tomorrow

CHAMBER OF COM. AUDITORIUM IS ABANDONED

Big, Light, Airy Floor Space Ideal for Comfortable Judging of Young Champions Is Afforded by Change of Location Through Thoughtful Courtesy

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Pendroy of the Pendroy store have asked the privilege of being host and hostess to the babies in the best baby contest and have offered to put at the disposal of doctors and nurses who are to conduct the judging a big, light, airy room where the babies and all concerned will be made comfortable while the tests are going on. The offer has been accepted and the JUDGING WILL TAKE PLACE AT PENDROY'S STORE instead of at the Chamber of Commerce, as at first announced. The two places are less than a block apart and PENDROY'S is if anything the more central.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Pendroy, Whose Big Glendale Store Will Be Scene of Judging Contestants

From the start of the contest the Pendroys have been tremendously interested. Mrs. Pendroy knows what it means having been engaged in welfare work before coming to Glendale.

The strongest, most substantial proof of interest was given when the Pendroys offered as a prize for the second best baby, a merchandise order for $100. That amount would buy many beautiful things at the Pendroy store and is certainly worth competing for.

MOTHERS, TAKE NOTICE! The babies, 4, 5 and 6 years that have been entered in the best baby contest, should be presented TUESDAY, October 3, at 1:30 o'clock at PENDROY'S STORE, northeast corner of Brand boulevard and Harvard street, Glendale, where they will be examined as rapidly as possible by a corps of competent local physicians. As it will be necessary for each baby to be divested of its clothes for a brief examination, mothers are asked to bring for each child a large towel to wrap around it during this period.

Judging will be based on five points, weight, measurement, physical development, disposition and appearance.

The physicians who have generously consented to serve as examining judges admit they will not have an easy job because the babies are all so good it will be hard to differentiate. However, all are honest and competent.

Mrs. Pendroy is herself awaiting the contest with the greatest enthusiasm as she is a great baby lover and has been through contests of this sort before.

Judges who have agreed to serve are:

Dr. Laura Brown, 104 South Brand, in general charge of the contest.

Dr. Floyd Thompson, 108 West Elk Avenue.

Dr. D. A. Baker, 118 West Wilson avenue.

Dr. Margaret Yorke, 1005 North Central.

Dr. A. D. Smith, 102-A South Brand.

Dr. A. M. Duncan, 1607 San Fernando road.

Dr. Newton Bobbitt, 105 North Brand.

Dr. Frances Eble, 226 South Louise.

Dr. Caroline Payne Jackman, 515 North Kenwood.

Dr. O. A. Dieterich, 208 West Broadway.

Dr. Frederick Rossiter, 203 West Broadway.

C. M. Taylor, 111 East Broadway.

Dr. Preston S. Kellogg, 614 North Louise.

When the gong sounded which announced that all further entrants were barred, the list of totals stood, 637. Following were the last minute babies from the Glendale district:

Mary Margaret Walsh, 5 years, 10 months; entered by Mrs. R. T. Walsh, 208 South Central avenue, Glendale.

Ralph Eugene Harmon, 1 year; entered by Mrs. A. E. Harmon, 353 West Garfield avenue, Glendale.

Rob Roy Gregg, 2 years; entered by Mrs. A. W. Gregg, 137 1-2 South Brand, Glendale.

Florence Lois Roberts, 5 years; entered by Mrs. W. S. Hammond, 1236 East Harvard, Glendale.

MERCHANTS' TEAM LOSES ONE GAME

"Rube" Ellis' Rivera club proved too much for the Glendale Merchants when they deefated the local boys by a score of 11 to 3, at San Fernando and Park yesterday.

Hannah, twirler for the visitors, allowed only four hits, while Heidler blew up early in the game, and a veritable flood of bunts by the Rivera men resulted in the victory.

HEADLIGHT EVIL STARTS POLICE CRUSADE

Official Testing Stations Are Named for Public Use

The city officials of Glendale will, about October 15, begin a rigid enforcement of the automobile headlight law. Every motorist caught driving an automobile with defective headlights in Glendale after that date will be arrested and fined. Warning is being given to the motorists of Glendale and vicinity so as to give them time to have their headlights tested and adjusted.

In order that drivers of this place may have no trouble in having their lights tested, three official testing and adjusting stations have been established. These are the Day and Night garage, 217 East Broadway; Psenner Brothers Auto Electric company, corner Chestnut and Brand, and Park & Black, Exide agents, 113 West Harvard.

MEXICAN SHACK TO STAY--P. E.

Answers Appeal of Glendale Property Owner with Refusal

CAMP IS PERMANENT

Asserts Location on Wash Is Industrial District; Finds It Desirable

The following has been received by a resident of Glendale, property owner, facing the Mexican shack at the Central avenue side from the Pacific Electric, in reply to a petition for the removal of the section camp as a detriment to the district:

"Referring to my letter of Aug. 30th in reply to yours of the 24th, relative to camp for our section laborers being built along the Burbank line:

"I find that we have no other suitable land for locating this camp. The present location is unquestionably industrial property, as there is a laundry, garage and wood lot in the immediate vicinity, all of which are located along the wash.

"Mr. Johnson, chief engineer of this company, suggested to Mr. Reeves, city manager of Glendale, that the property owners might possibly be willing to provide another location further out than the one owned by this company, under the conditions in his letter published in the Press, but up to the present time we have not heard from anyone concerning the matter.

"The buildings have been nearly completed, and after going over the property personally, I cannot see that a change should be made, as there is no other location in that vicinity that would be any more satisfactory than the one upon which the buildings have been placed.

"I regret very much that I am not in position to give you a more favorable reply.

Yours very truly,
D. W. PONTIUS,
Vice President and General Manager.

EDITORS ENDORSE SOLDIERS' LOAN BOND BILL

Ex-service men of all wars in which the United States has participated, and who entered service from California, should be given the opportunity to purchase farms and homes through the use of state credit and at low rates of interest, according to a resolution adopted by the Southern California Editorial association.

Action was taken by this organization at the Hotel Alexandria last week, and followed the presentation of the two propositions by Buron R. Fitts, a disabled platoon leader of the battle of the Argonne. Mr. Fitts is deputy district attorney of Los Angeles county, a past commander for California of the American Legion, and is directing the campaign to aid his disabled comrades. Although his right knee was completely shot away by shrapnel, Mr. Fitts is recognized as the most dynamic force for veteran legislation in the state. A few minutes after his talk to the editors he started on a tour of the entire state. The resolution adopted is fully explanatory of the proposed legislation, and is as follows:

"Whereas—Propositions 1 and 3 appearing on the ballot in November have to do with the welfare of all veterans of any war in which the United States has participated, and

"Whereas, these proposed measures are for the purpose of making the credit of the state available to veterans enlisted or inducted into service from this state, thereby making it possible for veterans to purchase homes, homesites or farms on a system of long-time payments and at low rates of interest, and

"Whereas, this organization thru investigating finds that the proposed loans, principal, interest and administrative and incidental expenses are to be borne by the veteran and that no part of bond issue or expense of administration is at any time borne by the taxpayer, and

"Whereas, there is no feature whatever of the proposed legislation that provides for a bonus, or a gift to the veteran, but that it is entirely a business transaction which will bring about the rehabilitation of disabled ex-service men first and other ex-service men second, and will improve and make more valuable a great amount of real property in the state; now, therefore, be it

"Resolved, that this organization is heartily in favor of the passage of propositions 1 and 3, and does recommend to its members and to the citizenry in general that they vote in the affirmation of these propositions at the November election.

(Signed)
"John E. King, President.
"J. J. Conrad, Secretary."

PASADENA SKUNK HOLDS UP CITY BUSINESS

PASADENA, Oct. 2.—Official business is up in the air today. A polecat is loose in the town. The animal wsa located early today by the janitor of the Union National bank. He was inoffensively sleeping in the doorway. Poking the cat gently, the janitor stepped aside while the unwelcome visitor passed out.

Later the cat perched on the top shelf of a Japanese curio shop. The police department called in the fire and health officials and finally put the whole problem up to the city manager, as to which department has supervision in the premises.

POST AUXILIARY TO START DRIVE FOR MEMBERS

Ladies of Legion to Work During October for Enlarged Membership

The month of October starts the drive for membership in the Ladies' Auxiliary to the American Legion in Eagle Rock.

The drive is to continue through the month of October, and the present members are ambitious to enroll every eligible person. All mothers, daughters, wives and sisters of anyone who was in any branch of the service between April 12, 1916, and November 11, 1919, are eligible to join whether her relative is a member of the American Legion at the present time or not.

To the one securing the largest number of new members during the month of October, a gold auxiliary pin will be given. A campaign meeting of both old members and new is planned for the second Tuesday of this month in the basement of the public library, at which time the campaign will broaden out in a final effort to enroll the largest number possible.

Then, on November 10, all ladies of the valley are invited to attend the luncheon to be given at the Los Angeles Express for the Ladies' Auxiliary benefit. The entire proceeds of this luncheon will be donated to the auxiliary. Kate Brew Vaughan, who needs no introduction to the housewife, will talk on some economic phase of the household, to be announced later.

Several musical numbers will be given, including a soprano solo by Miss Carette Manter, who will be remembered as one of the entertainers at the dance given by the Foresters of America this summer. Patriotic speakers are to be secured from the American Legion, and the whole affair will develop into a wholesome patriotic rally in commemoration of Armistice Day.

For the convenience of the ladies wishing to put in their membership it has been arranged to take the applications at the public library where they will be placed in the hands of the secretary. Applications may also be mailed to the Eagle Rock Daily Press, 109 South Central, and they will also be turned over to the secretary. It is the aim of the present members to develop the Ladies' Auxiliary into the most significant organization in Eagle Rock, and if ambitions are worth anything, their plans are in line for success.

TO HOLD BILLIARD TOURNAMENT IN BURBANK

Matches Between Burbank, Glendale Players to Be Arranged

A billiard tournament will be held for three weeks at the Woodward billiard parlors on North Angeleno avenue, near San Fernando boulevard, Burbank, the event to start during this month.

The tourney is expected to be very interesting, four of the best Burbank players to be pitted against the four best players of Glendale.

The Burbank players already have been picked. They are: Pearson, Smith, Wedgewood and Swearinger. These players are "crackerjacks" and will give the Glendale players stiff competition.

Prizes will be awarded the winners by Manager Woodward of the billiard parlor. Eight prizes will be awarded, ranging from $2.50 to $15.

In addition to the major prizes, other prizes will be awarded event winners, the prizes including boxes of cigars.

A tournament held last fall by Manager Woodward created a great deal of inferest, all of the players being of Burbank. More keen rivalry is expected this year due to the fact that half of the players will be from Glendale.

Manager Woodward would like to secure the names of the four best billiard players in Glendale.

$1,185.75 IS TOTAL TAG RECEIPTS FOR ELECTRIC LINE BONUS ON SATURDAY

Four Solicitors to Be Heard from May Make Total Amount Nearly $1200 Before Final Report Is Checked Over

ALL SUBSCRIPTION LISTS ARE CALLED IN

South Side of City Does Itself Proud with Banner List of Contributions Under Thursday Afternoon Club Organization

Eleven hundred and eighty-five dollars and seventy-five cents is the total amount reported as a result of the Community Tag Day held Saturday, according to a statement issued by Dr. Jessie A. Russell, chairman of the Tag Day committee, this morning. There are still four solicitors to be heard from, and whatever is turned in by them will be added to the total amount, probably bringing that figure up to something like $1200.

The southern section of the city probably should be given the blue ribbon for work done and money secured, considering the immediate benefits that section of Glendale will receive from this line. The section south of Windsor road sold tags to the extent of about $275, which puts the folks from that section way up in the lead when civic pride is considered. This section was taken care of by the Thursday Afternoon club, of which Mrs. William C. Mabry is president. Chairman Russell is high in her praise of the work done by the ladies of the southern section.

The Tag Day drive was started at an early hour Saturday morning. The heat of the day was such that the house to house work was called off at 1 o'clock.

The evening work, which was under the supervision of the Kiwanis club of Glendale, was more spectacular. Two automobile trucks, besides a large number of automobiles, constituted a parade which went through the various streets of the city, stopping at the principal streets to give programs.

In one of the trucks were Mayor Robinson, Harry Girard, Wilbur Herwig, Councilman Davis and P. J. Hayselden and the Bode orchestra, while in the other truck were the following saleslades: Mrs. T. H. Meng, Mrs. Minnie L. Henning, Mrs. Nellie Snow Hyer, Mrs. C. A. Perry and Mrs. Harry James. There were several other workers who rode in the different machines. The decoration of the trucks was done by Don Webb and W. C. Page.

During the evening the trucks stopped in front of the two theatres, whose managers permitted speakers to make five-minute addresses, after which the tag sellers went through the audience.

The amounts as they were received were double checked and the final amount was totaled by R. M. Gaddis.

The amount raised at Tag Day will go to swell the fund for the electrification of the Glendale avenue line. Subscriptions lists in the railroad drive will be called in at once and the amount of the grand total published at the earliest possible moment.

FINE QUARTET FOR HAVING LIQUOR IN MACHINES

Two Liquor Cases Heard in Burbank Court by Judge Crawford

Two cases in which the defendants were charged with the illegal transportation of liquor were heard by Judge Crawford in the Burbank recorder's court Friday, each of the four defendants pleading guilty.

Frank Uhle, age 18 years, Los Angeles mechanic, the only defendant in one of the cases, was fined $20 on the charge of speeding and $30 on the transporting charge. Racing his car through Burbank at an alleged excessive rate of speed caused Uhle to be halted by local officers, who discovered the liquor upon searching the machine.

The other case was of three Mexicans, C. Cipriani, age 31 years, butcher, Los Angeles; John Posini, age 31 years, truck driver, Los Angeles, and S. Portesi, age 58 years, blacksmith, Los Angeles.

DAMAGED

'CASEY' DRIVE OPENS AT HOLY FAMILY

Opening the "Casey" drive of the Knights of Columbus, in Glendale, the Rev. Father O'Neill spoke yesterday at the Holy Family church, upon the "Modern Character Assassin." He said in part:

"I am going to take for my text this morning, my dear brethren, a subject that will perhaps startle you, but before I have finished, you, one and all, I hope, will understand my intent and take away with you something to think over; something that if you do think it over, will lead to a closer cooperation in our parish work. A happier social atmosphere in our Catholic homes, and once and for all put an end to that most terrifying enemy civilization has ever had to battle with. I refer to the modern character assassin. "The thoughtless gossiper," the "tale bearer," the heartless "rumor," the "I heard," the "it was told me on good authority," the—"have you heard the latest scandal?"

Oh, my friends, the ancient coliseum, with the wild and savage beasts tearing human beings to pieces was not half so cruel as the modern character assassin of today. The man or woman, who through envy, hatred, or malice, allows the devil to creep into his heart and tries to tear down and belittle the good work that others more worthy are striving to accomplish. If we have such in our midst—please God they are very few; and I heartily wish I could say there were none. But our parish is no different from all other parishes. They all have their "anonymous letter writers," their "enemies who work in the dark," usually a cowardly, sneaking creature, who is mentally unbalanced, through the all consuming fire of envy, jealousy and hatred.

Now, there is only one way to put an end to the ravages of this monster. One way for decent, self-respecting people to draw the teeth of this dragon, called slander. And the way is explained in the one magic word, "Columbianism." Do you hear me? "Columbianism."

That body of men, six hundred thousand strong, who are loyal to both the church and state, the brave Knights, who are not afraid to declare their Catholicity. The men who have promised to bear no malice and fight all slander; to protect the Catholic home and all Catholic women and children; to try and live in peace and unity with all their neighbors and who are bound in duty to love, and honor the church.

There is only one fault with true Columbianism. It is the fault of modesty. Its principles are not cried out from the housetops. But they should be, for then, the world at large, would better understand what Columbianism stands for. Take a look at the war record of the order. A clean record. Then again glance at the big brother movement. Do you know that in Los Angeles alone last year, 275 young Catholic boys, who were convicted of temperamental crimes, stood ready to be sentenced before the judge, and be incarcerated in prison for long terms, were saved—yes, saved by the big brothers of the Knights of Columbus. And not one but gave promise of becoming a useful and respectable citizen. Think of it! Two hundred and seventy-five souls saved for the church and state, in one city, in one year. This alone should make us all proud of this all-Catholic organization. This is practical Columbianism. This is real Columbianism.

"Let me here quote the words of the Right Rev. Bishop Thomas Walsh of Trenton, N. J., who says: 'If the Knights of Columbus will take care of the growing boy, then the boy grown into manhood will take care of not only the Knights of Columbus, but of the church and the nation as well.' And Columbianism answered with the big brother movement in such an effective manner that all criticism is silenced.

"Take again the invidious attempt to throttle and exterminate the parochial schools through legislation. Columbianism has taken up the fight: has accepted the challenge and already put a stop to this invidious movement against the Catholic childhood of America.

"And now another danger threatens, the so-called K. K. K. Let me ask you men of this parish, how you would feel right here and now, if you did not have the comforting knowledge that for every sworn enemy of Catholicism in this secret order, that swears to exterminate all Catholics. Yes, we are classed together, Jews, negroes and Catholics. Let me reiterate, if you did not have the comforting knowledge that for every member of the Klu Klux Klan, we have ten Knights of Columbus, staunch and true, ever ready to fight for you, your homes, and your dear ones, and the privilege of worshipping God in your own way. Would you sleep as easily at night? I say you would not. And I say also it is the bounden duty of every practical Catholic gentleman to join the Knights of Columbus: and hence become an active protector of the faith. Contribute your dollar a month, and not only help financially, but gird on the armor of righteousness and bravely declare 'whom you are with.'

"In the words of his eminence the late James Cardinal Gibbons, of Baltimore, beloved of all:

"'If I may single out one society without prejudice to the merits of the others, I will name in particular manner that splendid organization, the Knights of Columbus. They are our joy and crown. They are the glory of Jerusalem. They are the joy of Israel. They are the honor of our people. Wherever calumny raises its foul head, they are ever ready, like true knights, to smite the enemy. Whenever an appeal is made in the cause of religion or charity, they are always foremost in lending a helping hand.'

"And finally in my plea to you, the representative Catholic men of Glendale, let me quote his eminence William Cardinal O'Connell, Archbishop of Boston, who says: 'Every Catholic man in the country who can, ought to be a Knight of Columbus, not only for his own benefit, not only for the sake of his family, but also because of the vast opportunities for great usefulness to God and country.'

"Our Glendale Council is starting a membership drive today, and I sincerely hope and pray that our Knights meet with success. We have over 600 registered Catholic gentlemen in this parish, who should be Knights of our Council. As your pastor, I am begging you to seriously consider a membership in the Catholic order of the Knights of Columbus.'

NIGHT HI SCHOOL CROWDED WITH PUPILS

Principal Ferguson Finds Classes Are All Proving Popular

Registration in the night school which began last Monday night has been keeping all teachers and the principal A. L. Ferguson busy trying to find places for all those applying.

Although there has been no checking up on the registration so far, Principal Ferguson said he was certain that there has been a very great increase over that of last year. He stated that it only proves the increasing demand for the night school, which was only started last year, against the beliefs of many of the school board who were skeptical as to its success.

A. L. Ferguson, principal of the night school, reports an approximate enrollment of 400 as compared with 250 at this period last year.

The total enrollment last year was 667, and the prospects are for an increase of at least thirty per cent this year. The millinery class alone presented a difficult problem when 90 applications were received in this class alone. The final plan which developed yesterday after a conference between Captain Watson, president of the board of education, and A. L. Ferguson of the night school, was to divide the number registering into four divisions, allowing each division to meet one night a week.

Other classes are reporting a heavy registration also. Fifty have enrolled in the sewing class, 75 in typing, 40 in shorthand and 40 in Spanish. Shop and automobile classes are also recording an unusual enrollment. Courses in business English are also offered.

Principal Ferguson reminds the Eagle Rock people of the opportunity that is open to them to attend the night school. He stated that they are to receive the same attention as the Glendale students, and that he believed they would find it worth their while to attend.

Additions will be made to the teaching force if the necessity is found, Captain Watson stated today that the board would take care of the night school.

ELDER WARREN OPENS SERIES OF MEETINGS

By W. L. TAYLOR

There are few men in the ministry today who might be compared to the Apostle John—the disciple whom the Master seemed to designate "John, the Beloved." Elder Warren, one of the oldest ministers in the Seventh Day Adventist faith, is among the few whom one might truly say "Is like John, the old Apostle of Love." If you doubt this statement go to hear him at the Seventh Day Adventist church this week. He preached last night and will hold a series of meetings all this week, beginning at 7:30 p. m.

Love is the keystone of everything that is good, and this venerable servant of God seems to have more of it than nearly any minister I have ever met. It is not the kind of love that finds outward expression in high-sounding words and tinkling cymbals, but a flow of words from the heart that have a strong appeal to the individual.

Last night the large church would hardly accommodate the big crowd which gathered to hear him, and during the hour he spoke he was accorded the closest attention. Added interest was given the service by a splendid vocal solo by Miss Martin. The public is invited to attend these meetings every night this week at the Adventist church, corner Isabel and California.

Elder Warren said: "You do not need preaching. If preaching is all that is needed we have had enough to give us all a passport to heaven. What you and I need is a connection—a direct connection with the power of God. We need to confess our sins one to another, make reparation for them as far as is in our power, and then we will know that we are saved, and the greatest awakening in our lives and the lives of others will be experienced. The Great Manager of human affairs is in our midst and is ready to come in and help us, but he will not come in unless we insist. He never intrudes.

"Soon He will come for the last time to earth. Are we ready to meet Him? Only those who have gained the victory in the struggle of the mighty will be permitted to swell the chorus of the saved over there. Do you want me to plead with you night after night to put away your sins? Certainly not. You have heard the pleadings of the Master through His servants many times. Get right with God, and His mighty saving power will manifest itself now. We need the early rains—showers of blessings—to wake us up to our duty, but the late rains will ripen our work into fruition. Unless the lines of control are fully surrendered to Him, He will not take them. Does the Master hold such a place in your life? If you don't know it, it is because He is not there. Are we led by the spirit of Christ? Enoch had the testimony he was in the spirit before God translated Him."

"God will judge each one," continued Elder Warren. 'It won't be long—even now He may be knocking at the door. We must experience a change if we reach heaven. The good book says, 'A thousand shall fall at your side, and ten thousand shall fall by the way.' These are my friends and your friends. The godless will have no chance when the end comes.

"If we are true to God the powers of evil will be no more able to overcome us than is the chaff able to resist the whirlwind. You can reach God's ideal for you if you will resolve that self shall not be woven into your work."

Elder Daniels vividly pictured the last hours of the Master on earth when he pleaded with God for His apostles and all His followers in the ages to come. "That they may be one; they are not of the world."

"Isn't it sad," said Elder Daniels, "that we haven't enough of the power of God in our own homes to save our own dear boys and girls? We need to get right with God. The busy business man should think more of his home and try to get the young people to take more interest in Christ. The responsibility is with you, dear father and mother," concluded the minister.

CITY HALL BIBLE CLASS HAS BIG ATTENDANCE

A large number of men attended the Men's Bible class, Sunday morning. Every seat in the council chamber at the city hall was filled. "Jesus—the Preparer of Heavenly Abode," was the subject taken by Keith L. Brooks.

The fourteenth chapter of John is sometimes called the Holy of Holies chapter of the gospels. Our Lord's last moments in the midst His disciples are here chronicled. He had opened His public ministry with them by His sermon on the Mount. He closes it with these lofty truths not surpassed by anything in the New Testament.

"Let not your heart be troubled. Ye believe in God, have the same trust in Me." We are to put no a faith in Christ than in God Himself, for He is the Son of God. Some are presenting Christ today as a Teacher who taught about His Father's love, about morality, justice and truth. Yet the peculiarity of His call as it runs thruout the whole gospel record is that men should believe in Him and should honor Him even as the Father Himself. Trust in Him is the secret of peace. It is useless to say to a man, "Let not your heart be troubled," without saying "Put your trust in Jesus Christ."

"In my Father's house are many abiding places." Here is a great truth clothed in simple words. Saved people are to be God's housemates. God is to have a home filled with many children. Heaven is not merely a state, but a definite locality. The thought of God having a home for His own becomes more precious to believers as the years slip away. Home is the center round which our affections turn, and when home breaks up here, the man who has accepted Christ may know that the Father has a home above in which there will be perfect communion. Jesus says, "If it were not so, I would have told you." Perhaps there were misgivings in the minds of His disciples. Perhaps they thought He was only using elaborate symbolical language. He tells them distinctly that He is not filling their minds with delusive hopes, but that the things He has promised are to be literally true.

"If I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again and receive you unto myself." There would have been no place for us if He had not gone to prepare it. We could not even enter there apart from His atoning death. In the ancient ritual of the old Testament the priest was privileged once a year to lift the veil of the temple and pass into the holy of holies, because he bore in his hand the blood of sacrifice and it is only through Him that one can enter there. He is coming again. This is not a reference to the death of the individual believer, which is a going to Him, for Jesus Himself interprets it as a corporeal, literal, personal and local coming, at the close of this dispensation, when He will raise from the dead the bodies of those whose spirits are with Him and will translate all living believers.

The question is, how can one be entitled to these eternal benefits? The answer is in the 6th verse. "Jesus said, I am the way, the truth and the life. No man cometh unto the Father but by Me." Jesus was God's way to men and He is man's way to God. No man can come to God except through Him. These words are final against the modern notion that it does not matter what a person believes, that all beliefs lead to heaven if sincerely held. Jesus distinctly says, "There is no way to the Father but by Me." God will not be a Father to those who refuse Him.

MAKING LEATHER

Many farmers have asked the United States department of agriculture for directions for making leather on a small scale. The bureau of chemistry of the department has prepared full details for making sole, harness, or belting leather. A leaflet has been issued which describes the treatment of a single hide from the time it is taken from the animal until it is finished and ready for use as leather. The directions given are for making oak-tanned leather. The leaflet will be sent free on application.

907 COMPLY WITH LAW ON FRUIT 'JUICING'

With the vintage season in California now on in full blast only 907 heads of families have filed with Collector Rex D. Goodcell the required notices of intention by which each is permitted to make 200 gallons of non-intoxicating fruit juice for exclusive family use, tax free.

During the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1922, there were 1,582 notices of intention filed. In other words, during that year only 1,582 heads of families legally manufactured fruit juices.

In order that many erroneous impressions concerning the manufacture of non-intoxicating fruit juices exclusively for use in the home as related to existing Internal Revenue laws, may be cleared away, the department has issued the following instructions for the guidance of collectors:

"Cider made and used in the home is not subject to tax under Internal Revenue laws, but grape and other fruit juices, not including cider, if fermented to the point where they contain one-half of one per cent of alcohol by volume, even though non-intoxicating, and regardless of Section 29, Title 2, of the National Prohibition Act, are subject to tax under the Revenue Act of June, 1918, as wine. All persons producing fruit juice other than cider containing one-half of one per cent or more of alcohol by volume are required to register in accordance with Regulations 28 and Treasury Decision 2765. Subject to the limitations indicated by Treasury Decision 2765, the head of a family who has properly registered may make 200 gallons exclusively for family use without payment of tax thereon. If he makes more than 200 gallons he must give a bond and pay tax on the excess. If such excess amount is intoxicating, double the ordinary tax is due as provided by the National Prohibition Act."

Under the regulations, while each family is permitted to make 200 gallons tax-free annually, it must be used for family purposes only and consumed on the premises on which it was manufactured.

Collector Goodcell pointed out that heads of families must file notice of intention before pressing grapes, otherwise they are liable to a penalty of $1,000.

The exemption allowed a head of family does not apply to juice made by one person for the use of another, whether consumed on the premises or removed therefrom for the family use of the owner; juice produced by a single person unless he is the head of a family; produced by a married man living apart from his family; made by a partnership or produced at a winery owned and operated by several heads of families jointly, or to juice furnished ranch hands or boarders.

THE WINNING OF SOULS TOLD BY DR. EDMONDS

Rev. W. E. Edmonds preached at the Presbyterian church Sunday morning on "A Call to Soul-winning," from the words, "Lift up your eyes and look on the fields, for they are white already to harvest"; "Have compassion, pulling them out of the fire."

Jude calls himself "servant of Jesus Christ." The keynote of his epistle is "service," service out of love and compassion, and all built up on a foundation of intense earnestness. His word "fire" suggests the idea of one caught in a burning building with hope of escape cut off. In this world we make much of any who save life at cost of heroic effort—to save bodies. What shall be said of those who have gone about saving souls for eternity?

Years ago a prominent minister went over to Scotland and preached in the pulpit which had been filled by McCheyne. He asked an old member about the texts and the sayings of the great divine, but they were forgotten. But he could well remember the trembling hand laid upon his young head and the anxious words, "I am very much concerned about your soul." Is there anything like that love and compassion in your life?

John's gospel more than any other is the manual for soul-winners. He reminds us that the higher up we rise in fellowship with Christ the wider out our sympathy extends and the lower down will we reach to find His lost treasures. Behold His love and compassion. He can touch the hidden spring of your life and open up its burden and give peace.

He asks us to lay aside trivial affairs and "pull men out of the fire." This shows His estimate of human life. It's an emergency call and can't wait. This old world is plunging headlong to ruin. You thought a few years ago we were in the last war—such never could happen again. Now our papers bring us hourly a prospect growing worse and worse. It is indeed America's business what is going on over on the other side, the helpless before the unspeakable Turk. It's wrong to talk of our ocean boundaries and say it is none of our business.

Notice another thing about that woman at Samaria: She went back into the town from her talk with Jesus with a real and efficient message, "Come!" and they came. We are to meet a program for work with such a message. This is a supernatural work; you can't liff yourself. Nothing but a miracle of grace can save these lives, "pulling them out of the fire."

OUTLAW BUSINESS CONCERNS TO BE INVESTIGATED

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 2.—Drastic action in dealing with so-called "outlaw business organizations" was planned today by the state corporation department. This decision by state authorities follows the sweeping decision of the state supreme court upholding the authority of the commissioner of corporations in dealing with organizations seeking to evade the proper state supervision.

Corporation Commissioner Edwin M. Daugherty issued a sweeping warning to all who are endeavoring to evade the corporate securities act by forming various kinds of trusts to avoid the careful scrutiny of the state and get around the necessity of securing permits for the issuance of securities in this state.

The test case was that of Francis E. Agnew vs. Edwin M. Daugherty, corporation commissioner. The action of the high court held that the commissioner of corporations had a right in his contention that these forms of trusts were under his jurisdiction; that trust certificates issued under this plan were "securities" within the meaning of the California law. The state supreme court upheld the commissioner in assuming jurisdiction over this form of trust which has come into wide use in California. The court took cognizance of the fact that many promoters considered this plan a successful one to get around the "blue sky law" of the state.

The commissioner warned these promoters, stock brokers and salesmen to cease selling various kinds of interests, units, participating shares, undivided interests and all substitutes for corporate stock until they had applied and obtained a permit from the state corporation department.

It's toasted. This one extra process gives a delightful quality that can not be duplicated

WHERE PUBLIC SCHOOLS FAIL INDICATED

"The public schools of America have failed in the matter of the fundamentals of life and character," declared Rev. Clifford A. Cole in a sermon to a large audience yesterday in the Central Christian church. "We have grown a generation without the foundations of religious teaching and are reaping the whirlwind. The home and the school have left religious teaching to the church and the average Amercian family is allowing the only source of the fundamental teaching of youth to struggle along without any support worth mentioning, in fact, it is repudiating the only institution on earth that goes on year after year with pitiful lack of material and equipment training the heart and mind in far more important things than the classics and art and mathematics.

"The church in America has an institution well organized, magnificently manned by an heroic teaching force, with all the potentialities of a unique influence to mold and shape the thinking and acting millions of impressionable youth at the most critical age. But it is choked and hobbled and bound and gagged by its friends, the church members, because they never had a vision of the real value of it, and have not been willing to pay a decent price for an invaluable training.

"If religious education is necessary, as Washington and Lincoln claimed repreatedly, for the welfare of the republic, then the Bible schools of this country, carried on by the churches, are a greater factor than all the curricula of the colleges and universities.

"Why is it that Hugh S. Magill, for years the national field secretary of the National Educational association, the national organization of our public school teachers, has resigned his position to become general secretary of the International Council of Regious Education? It is because he feels that we are doomed as a democracy without the basis of all true education, Christian education. Is it worth more to you to have your son graduate in astronomy than to know something about God, who made astronomy possible? Is it worth more to your children to know how to talk foreign languages than to speak the language of the Brotherhood of Man? And what shall it profit you or them if, after finding the things in college books that tells them how to get on in this world, they miss the way to heaven and lose their own souls?

"Is religious education worth more than secular? If so, why not pay for it? If the Sunday schools of America constitute the greatest educational force we have, why don't we support them as we support colleges and universities? What can a usual run of Sunday schools do on a budget of $500 a year? If you had to pay a good tuition for his religious education as you do for his college training, you would realize that your boy is receiving instruction that will make him a real force and you will feel the value of this great institution.

"The day is not far removed when the church will, alongside the public school, give week-day religious instruction under paid and well-trained leadership. Unless it does our nation is as sure to go to the rocks of infidelity and materialism as have the other nations that have forgot what is fundamental in the life of youth."

The large audience at Central Christian church last night showed great interest in the answers to three questions sent in during the previous week, to the pastor, Rev. Cole. They were, "Should dancing be permitted in the public schools?" "Is it right for a Christian to take Sunday auto trips to the beaches, bathing with the crowds or to the mountains, hunting or fishing?" "How much work about the home can a real Christian do on Sunday?"

To the first question, the answer was a decided "no." Dancing as mentioned in both old and new Testaments is always by men or groups of men, women or groups of women. So there is not the slightest scriptural authority for commingling of the sexes in dancing. Evening dances, the intoxicating music, heat and perfume, and the too-often indulged in auto ride afterward are very dangerous temptations, but more so to boys than girls, was the affirmation, supported by authorities. The second and third questions were answered as one. The pastor said that there is no law or rule in the Bible for the keeping of the Lord's day, or Sunday. There were strict laws, evasions of which were pushable by death, for the keeping of the Sabbath, which was for Jews only. This law or covenant with Moses for the Jews entered into by Jehovah, was "the schoolmaster to lead us to Christ," as Paul says, and was "nailed to the cross" according to the same New Testament writer therefore, is not binding on anyone now.

Rev. Cole laid down the broad principle that the Lord's day is for worship and service to others and that the real Christian will seek no pleasures and do no work on that day which will bring him into reproach or cause criticism. He should be just as faithful in observing the Lord's day as the Jew or the Seventh Day Adventist is in observing the Sabbath.

Word was received here today of the marriage of Mr. Frank Stoddard of 802 East Maple avenue and Miss May Stafrod of Alhambra at Alhambra on Saturday. Miss Stafford is a sister-in-law of Governor Blain of North Dakota.

Brown of this city, were guests at the celebration of the wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. William Jennings Bryan on Sunday, from 4 to 6, at the home of Mr. Bryan's daughter, Mrs. R. L. Hargreaves, in Hollywood. The gathering was limited to a few relatives and old friends from Nebraska.

HEART SPECIALIST WINS PATRONAGE AT GLENDALE

What better place for a "heart specialist' than in a Turkish harem, where so many are broken?

This was evidently the conclusion of the scenarist of the Realart feature which opened last night at the Glendale theatre, for he gives Mary Miles Minter, the star, a trip into that colorful atmosphere, carrying an enthralled audience along. The story of "The Heart Specialist" primarily concerns itself with the adventures of a young newspaper woman in rescuing a disabled veteran of the late war from the clutches of a couple of crooks who plan to make away with him and get his money.

Stumbling into the situation while engaged in a search for romance, Rosalie Beckwith finds it! And with it are several adventures in which she herself skirts the featheredge of death. Miss Minter's support is excellent, including Allen Forrest as leading man, Noah Beery, Roy Atwell, Carmen Phillips, James Neill and Jack Matheis.

STEIN RESIGNS

Detective Sergeant Stein of the Glendale police department has resigned from that force, his resignation to take place immediately. Officer E. S. Boucher has been appointed to the position vacated. Mr. Stein is moving with his family to San Jose, where he will probably be engaged in police work.

Mrs. Jack Eccles and little daughter Betty of Peniele, Montana, who visited Isaac H. Pearson and wife of 644 East Harvard street the past two weeks, have gone to Orange to locate for the winter. Mrs. Eccles is a grand daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pearson. She and her husband own a large cattle ranch near Peniele and as soon as he finishes his fall round-up he will join the wife and daughter in Orange. They expect to divide their time between Montana and Southern California, not wishing to sell the ranch yet, as there are indications of oil in the neighborhood. They would have preferred to live in Glendale but could not find, on such short notice, the kind of a home they wish. Mrs. Eccles' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Julian Pearson, who live in Peniele also, have sold their property there and will move to Glendale about Christmas time.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brown and three children of Pomona, drove over to Glendale Sunday to visit Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Pearson, 644 East Harvard street. The Browns and Pearsons were fellow townsmen in Fayette, Missouri, for many years. Mr. Brown is a son of the millionaire tobacco magnate of that name.

INDUSTRIAL RATE FOR GAS REDUCED

In order to meet the competition of fuel oil, Southern California Gas company was authorized by the railroad commission today to put into effect a reduced schedule for the sale of natural gas for industrial purposes. The reduced rates are based on oil at $1 a barrel. The order provides that the company may increase these rates one-half cent per thousand cubic feet for each 3-cent per barrel advance in the market price of oil above $1 a barrel, with the proviso that the maximum price of gas shall in no case exceed 30 cents per thousand cubic feet. The new rates range from 25 cents down to 17½ cents per thousand cubic feet, according to quantity consumed.

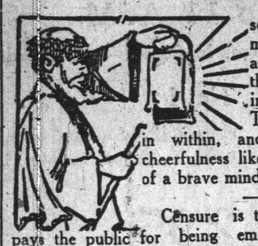
Truths in Epigram



True joy is a serene and sober motion; and they are miserably out that take laughing for rejoicing. The seat of it is in within, and there is no cheerfulness like the resolutions of a brave mind.—Seneca.

Censure is the tax a man pays the public for being eminent.—Jonathan Swift.

CURING THE ILLITERATE

The state of Washington, through county organizations, is making a concerted fight on illiteracy. It proposes to be rid of illiteracy by the end of 1925. This looks like a large undertaking, but it is highly laudable, and with the date postponed somewhat, it is not impossible of accomplishment. With an equal spirit of determination, it could be done throughout the country. There is no excuse for the degree of ignorance that prevents mature persons of sound mind from performing the simple task of reading and writing the language they speak.

That so large a proportion of the population was illiterate was one of the startling revelations of the war. Perhaps statisticians and educators had been aware of conditions, but to the public the figures came with a shock. They seemed so unbelievable, and there was such an entire absence of excuse for them. It is not the policy of Americans to keep any part of the citizenry at a low plane of intelligence. In the beginning of this government there was voiced the demand that education be general. "We must educate," cried a statesman of the day, "we must educate, or short will be our race from the cradle to the grave." The truth of the words is as strongly appealing as it was then.

The lack of education is a crime, when it is not a mere misfortune. The public is ready and willing and competent to provide schools. Compulsory attendance should be universal. Poverty should not be permitted to serve as the excuse for absence, because upon the public ought to fall the duty of remedying such conditions. The state furnishes schools, teachers and books. It may compel the use of all these facilities, and failing to do so, must be regarded as lax towards a plain duty.

An illiterate person is gravely handicapped. The community that harbors such persons also is handicapped, because upon the registry of citizenship it counts those who are, and necessarily must be, unfit, unversed as to their rights, and denied a voice in expressing their wrongs. They are dead weights to progress, excess social baggage, dragging down the average morale, and the total national capacity.

To bring about an absolute reform by the end of 1925 would be a rapid process, probably beyond achievement. But in that time a splendid start might be made. The idea nurtured in Washington deserves to be taken up throughout the whole number of states.

FROM COAST TO COAST

Two army aviators expect shortly to fly from San Diego to New York without stop. The idea, in the light of progress already seen, does not seem to suggest an improbability. A flight from coast to coast, with but a single stop, already has been made. With prevision for sufficient fuel, there appears no reason why the contemplated journey should not be taken in safety. Even the effort to make it indicates the coming of the time when similar trips will be common.

It was but a few years ago an aviator named Rogers crossed the continent. He had no thought of accomplishing this without stops. At that time none but the accomplished scientists who had just begun to conquer the air had dreamed of the developments that mark the present. Rogers arrived in Los Angeles after a succession of short jumps. Even so his feat was regarded as a triumph. Afterwards he was killed when his airship went wrong at Long Beach. Such indeed, was the fate of most of the pioneers of flying.

The element of danger has not yet been reduced to a minimum. Often the death of expert flyers has to be recorded. But aviators are learning all the time. Builders are discovering and remedying the weak points in construction. The men who operate the machines are finding out just what may safely be done, and how to meet emergencies. In the near future, to "hop off" in California and land at the Atlantic seaboard, will be an experience so ordinary as hardly to attract attention.

BARRING OUT FOREIGNERS

Generally it is to be taken for granted that a country will welcome visitors from other lands. No such feeling prevails in Bavaria. There the government has ordered foreigners to get out and stay out. Bavaria does not cater to the tourist trade. Hereafter the alien is to be admitted only when he has imperative reasons for being there.

The unfriendly course of Bavaria is based on economic grounds. Travelers exhaust the local supplies, and the difficulty of replenishment is great. There is no advantage derived from introduction of money, when the result of accepting the money is to strip stores of that which the natives need, and that cannot be replaced. In receiving the gold of the tourists, Bavaria has been promoting famine at home. There is no virtue in the possession of money that has to be retained because there is nothing useful for which it may be exchanged.

Many Americans have gone to Europe for wholly legitimate purposes. They have been welcomed genially because of the sums they were ready to expend. At the same time the presence in a shattered and still bewildered land, of a lot of gaping aliens, has seemed akin to impertinence. When such roamers have sent back word of the way in which they were being overcharged, they have stirred no sympathy among their countrymen at home. There is much to see and much to do on this side. If Americans inclined to flit about just for the fun of it, were to flit within the confines of their own land, they might learn a lot.

POLITICAL PRISONERS

Concerted efforts are in progress to procure the release of "political" prisoners. It is necessary to state that in this country there are no political prisoners, in the sense that the term generally is understood. In such a government as that of Mexico under Diaz, a man was subjected to arrest for any form of opposition to the ruling power. If he was regarded as a rival, he went to prison, and was lucky to arrive, for generally he was killed en route.

The President is stated already that the case of each one of the so-called political prisoners would be considered on its merits. A circular sets forth: "He implied that all would be released who had not advocated the violent overthrow of the government." To this it adds: "There are (is) none such." But evidence that there is none such appears to be lacking. These men were not incarcerated for their opinions, or for the expression of their opinions. They were convicted by reason of their acts, which being in time of war, had all the color of treason. They urged resistence to the laws, and defiance of the regulations made necessary by an emergency. They evaded conscription, and taught others methods of evasion. In this manner they were specifically giving aid and comfort to the enemy, a distinct and highly reprehensible form of crime.

Doubtless some of them have had a sufficient lesson. Doubtless others will emerge with all their former hatred for authority, and continue to do their utmost to undermine the processes of orderly society. Meanwhile, since the subject is directly under consideration by President Harding, it might be well to leave it there.

Mankind in the Right Perpective

By DR. FRANK CRANE

It is most interesting and rather shattering to get the whole compass of man's existence upon this planet in its right perspective.

Dr. Frank Crane

Professor Robinson in his book, "The Mind in the Making," assists us to do this as follows:

He says that we can get a good idea of the probable relation of the existence of the human race to the universe by imagining that a single generation of men has managed to progress during the entire space of time it has existed on the earth.

That is, in fifty years suppose that the race has made as much progress as it has made in the five hundred thousand years or so it has lived upon the planet.

Each year in the life of this generation would then correspond to ten thousand years in the actual life of the race.

According to this illustration, and on this scale, it would take forty-nine years to get intelligence enough to quit the life of wandering hunters and settle down to the business of tilling the ground, growing crops, domesticating animals, and weaving garments.

Six months later, or half through the fiftieth year, some of the cleverest of them would have invented writing.

Three months later another group would have carried literature, art and philosophy to a high degree of refinement, and set the standard for the succeeding week.

At the end of the fiftieth year our generation would have been living for two months under the blessings of Christianity, the printing press would be a fortnight old, and they would have had the steam engine a week.

Only two or three days they would have been hastening about the globe in steamships and railroad trains. Only yesterday they would have discovered electricity.

But a few hours ago they would have learned to fly in the air and to navigate under the water.

Whereas a week ago they were burning and torturing those who differed from the ruling party on theological questions, hanging and mutilating those who had new ideas of government and murdering old women who were accused of traffic with the devil, they would but a few days ago have discovered how to make war not by armies fighting each other, but by exterminating entire populations, including women, children and cripples.

As just about a year ago they were all vagrant savages, they yet have so much of the savage blood in them that they do not know how to run governments, carry on business, prosecute law-suits, or even manage churches without fighting.

From all this we can get an interesting sidelight upon how recent our civilization is, how much of savagery still clings to us, and how precarious is our advance.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

GRAMMAR UNDER FIRE

Professor H. L. Sensemann's Views

"If teachers themselves will speak correctly and insist on their scholars doing the same irrespective of grammatical rules, improvement of speech among young people and in our business and social life will be marked," said Professor Sensemann of the University of Michigan to the author of "The Right Word."

"A child will forget," said Professor Sensemann, "many rules on which he is drilled, but he is not going to say 'It is him,' rules or no rules, if he is constantly hearing 'It is he.' The child imitates its mother or father or both, is influenced by environment, and absorbs and makes his own what it is accustomed to hearing. If the school and the home both will maintain an atmosphere of correctly spoken English, our young people will speak correctly, even if they never see a book on grammar."

I asked Professor Sensemann what he thought of "splitting infinitives." He replied:

"I am going to give you a 'split infinitive' and ask you to improve on the construction. Here it is: 'He is able to more than doubt it.' Improve it if you can. "I believe," went on Professor Sensemann, "that when it is necessary to split an infinitive for the sake of euphonious, unstilted expression it is all right to do so.

"I once passed a machine from which a handsomely dressed woman had alighted. This was at Ann Arbor. I was about to turn the corner when I heard one of the young persons that had remained in the machine say, 'I'm coming too.'

"'No, you ain't,' replied the woman.

"Now," said Professor Sensemann, "I contend that any person, no matter how well dressed and how much blessed with culture, who is uncultured in speech, is uncultured in many other ways. I can see, in such a person's home, furniture and decorations, ornate, possibly gaudy, and lacking in taste.

"One's speech," concluded Professor Sensemann, "is always a revelation to those whom one meets."

THE LISTENER

When it's summer in the heart we usually leave the doors and windows open.

That is to say, the doors and windows of the heart.

And when it's winter in the heart, we usually keep the doors and windows closed.

Unless, indeed, it is a very mild winter day.

* * *

And it is fine to find a summery heart with the doors and windows open.

Fine, not only for the summery heart, but for the visitor.

Who may want to come in for rest and shade and companionship.

Then when it is summer in the heart and the doors and windows are open, the fresh and fragrant air of the outdoors comes filtering in.

And the songs of birds.

And the scent of the roses.

And perhaps a vision of roses nodding and leaves blowing.

Or the sleepy rustle of leaves in the trees.

The merry cry of a boy or girl at play.

The whistle which is the boy's hymn of happiness and playtime.

The chirping of songsters somewhere and the lowing of cows perhaps and any one of a number of the sounds and songs of summer.

* * *

All of these are comforting.

They make a sort of symphony for us of the outdoors.

Perhaps if the doors and windows are in a mountain canyon there may be the purling and splashing of a brook.

Or the dashing of a tumultuous mountain stream.

* * *

So it is fine when there is summer in the heart.

When there is warmth and friendliness and gladness.

When we invite the fragrance and the ...ness and songs of the out of doors.

And when visitors may come in unannounced and bring us a good-day and a cheery word.

* * *

A lot of things are ours when there is summer in the heart.

And it is possible to have summer in the heart a lot of the time if we keep our hearts in tune.

And if sometimes there is winter in the heart, we may hope that spring and the summer are not far behind, as Shirley says, and that is the title of a recent and popular book.

* * *

For the heart may be bleak and the world chill and cold and the doors and windows closed.

But there will come the spring with its blossoms and the summer with its light and song and then we may throw open the doors and windows again.

The birds will come back.

The flowers bloom again.

And beauty and light and gladness will return.

* * *

It may be beauty and light and gladness will be softened and tempered and chastened by the winter of suffering and sorrow.

Just as the light of the afternoon may be mellowed as it filters through the cathedral windows.

But the heart is alert to rejoice again if it has the chance.

* * *

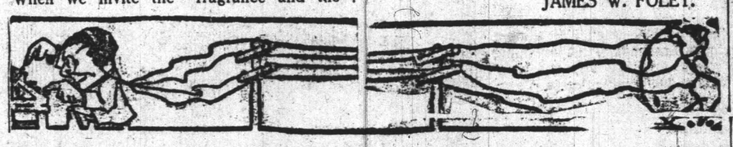
So let us open the doors and windows of the heart at the first warmth and song of spring.

Be ready for the coming of friends unannounced.

Invite the beauty of the out of doors.

And for the gladness there is ever in the world somewhere.

JAMES W. FOLEY.



SONGS OF THE POETS

SONG.—By Thomas Parnell 1679-1718.

Why thy beauty appears
In its graces and airs
All bright as an angel new dropped from the sky,
At distance I gaze and am awed by my fears;
So strangely you dazzle my eyes.

But when without art
Your kind thoughts you impart,
When your love runs in blushes through every vein;
When it darts from your eyes, when it pants in your heart,
Then I know you're a woman again.

There's a passion and pride
In our sex (she replied),
And thus, might I gratify both, I would do:
Still an angel appear to each lover beside,
But still be a woman to you.

May Use Poison Gas at Constantinople

Much speculation is rife as to whether poison gas and other modern means of warfare will be used in the impending hostilities near Constantinople.

Contrary to general opinion, there are no international agreements in force that prohibit the use of asphyxiating, poisonous or other gases and similar liquids in warfare in this seat of operations. In fact, there are no international covenants wholely ratified and in force that limit in any way the use of the chemical methods of warfare developed during the latter part of the world war.

The treaties that resulted from the Washington conference for the limitation of armament have not yet been ratified by all governments concerned and therefore are not in effect. In any case this agreement only restricts the signatory powers in conflict among themselves and does not apply to war with the Turks. Moreover, as the forces under Mustapha Kemal Pasha do not hold allegiance to the recognized Turkish sultan at Constantinople, they are considered irregular insurgents to whom agreements can not be applied. The Treaty of Sevres, which strictly prohibited the use of such war material by the Turks, is not in force as it has not been ratified by all parties to it, and is emphatically repudiated by the victorious Turkish leader. He may make use of poison gas or any other means he pleases to employ.

It is known that chemists in Russia have recently shown great activity in the manufacture of explosives and this may extend to other branches of military chemistry. The Kemalists have received much of their munitions from the soviet. In recent advances against the Greeks the Turks are reported to have captured large amounts of ammunition of British origin and it is understood that French arms and ammunitions have also found their way into Turkish hands.

Whether the British will use a combination of gas and airplanes in repulsing the Kemalists is a question. By spraying poison gas from low-flying airplanes as department of agriculture scientists are dusting boll weevils in cotton fields, a few active airplanes could disperse an army, it is believed, if the enemy were ill prepared in gas defense or aerial forces.

An interesting angle on the possibility of the use of gas by Great Britain in the present trouble is presented by the British stand when rules of war were being framed at The Hague. She insisted on an exception being made to the prohibition of dumdum bullets in case of a conflict with uncivilized enemies. The conduct of the Turks in the present campaign may be regarded as justifying the use of any weapons to prevent Constantinople from suffering the fate of Smyrna.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

SCHOOL AND CHURCH

[Columbia Record]

Ever hear the old propaganda about religion in education, or education in religion. Prophets there are who in their faith to the slogan that education is the panacea for all the ills that afflict mankind, while another school vociferates that religion, particularly some certain one of the multitude of sects, is the thing that will rush the millennium into the center isle of what Old Jim Burdick used to call the "yeath."

Then there are those who mix their demands and ask for "religion in education" or "education in religion." These are they who want the Bible taught in public schools; these are they who insist the pulpit is a forum for political, sectarian, scientific and sociological discussion.

They forget, these enthusiasts, that an absolute separation of Church and State is American fundamental. Exclusive of Sunday, there are 144 hours in the week. In the usual public schools thirty hours a week is devoted to education. Why take from the thirty time to speak of the Bible? Why not take from the 114 hours not devoted to education, for study of the world's education, for study of the Word? What is Sunday for? For what is a Sunday school?

Men go to church one, two, three hours in a week. Why use those precious three hours to discuss books, men, politics, wars, crime, sex ... all the scare-head stuff the radical "preacher," as opposed to the sincere minister of God, uses to "attack" people to the church?

There is a time and place for everything; a time and place for education, and for religious instruction. The school is no place to teach the Bible, or religion; the pulpit, is no place to teach geography or politics.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

The arrest of a medium in Los Angeles is interesting because so rare. This individual is charged with crimes far graver than the mere fleecing of dupes. How many of his kind are operating is not known, and apparently is worth finding out. But regarded as a swindler alone, the individual who tales money for reading the future is enough of a nuisance to cause demand for the abatement of the entire outfit. The fraudulency of the whole gamut of operations has been exposed times without number. The medium, for a fee, will go into a mild trance, and exhibit a number of stereotyped tricks. For a larger fee, the trance is enriched by a spectacular fit, with fine rolling of the eyes, with moans of exhaustion, and the performer will emerge after having been delivered of a message of bunk that could not fool anybody with a mind more mature than that of a six-year-old. There are various ways of catching the gullible, from invoking the spirits, to uttering platter over cards, gazing into a crystal, or reading the palm. They are all alike in that they prey upon the credulous, presume upon ignorance, and recognize the ever-stable supply of suckers. And civic bodies issue these fakes permits to do business, while papers accept their advertisements, and go joyously along proclaiming their own virtue and unsullied repute.

Introduction of a Singelese into pugilistic circles promises something novel to lovers of this form of sport. It seems probable that the new fighter will be able to wade through the entire field of heavyweights. After that, there would be nothing to match him with but a gorilla. Then there might be a really interesting contest, actually on the square, and thus in all respects unique.

It is quite natural that Ford should be represented as seeking the presidency. This happens to almost any man who achieves important success. The conclusion by no means follows that Ford has any such notion concerning himself. A man professedly so ignorant of history, so profoundly lacking knowledge concerning anything but his own business, could not aspire to be head of the world's greatest nation, without by such posture making himself ridiculous.

Photographs of prohibition agents are in demand. They are wanted by the bootleggers. With the features of the agent once made familiar, the danger of selling him forbidden liquor, and being led from the place of traffic to the jail, would be minimized. The sincere agent will make an endeavor to suppress this new traffic, which has arisen as an adjunct of moonshining.

An editor exclaims with virtuous mein "Keep The News Clean!" An excellent idea. Some question arises as to why he does not seek to follow his own counsel. No critic, even kindly inclined, could assert that the editor does this. On the contrary. The apparent discrepancy between the admonition and the editorial course, is a misunderstanding as to the meaning of "clean." The news he is denouncing is not salacious, not scandal, not nasty insinuation; nothing like that. It is such news as may mention English affairs and give no color of hostility to the account. In other words, he thinks that news coming from a British source necessarily is poison. So the caption over his editorial is camouflage, and his apparent aspiration after purity, a bluff.

Coming out of mimic battle, naval forces of the air and naval forces of the sea, both claim to have won. So the matter appears to be just where it was when the affair started. No great decision ever has been reached by mimic battle. To determine a mooted point a fight must be real, or it is nothing but a diverting spectacle.

The statement is made openly that the defense in a pending trial for murder will be that of insanity. There will be an effort to establish that the accused had relatives who were known to be eccentric. That the relatives are not to be tried, is a circumstance that the public will bear in mind, whatever the jury may think about it. Justice Wilbur of the state supreme court, believes that the plea of insanity should be abolished. Thoughtful people who have noted the purpose and effect of such plea, cannot well fail to agree with him. Ordinarily the plea of insanity is advanced in the absence of any valid defense. It is the effort to defeat justice. The frequency with which it has been permitted to succeed is a shame upon American courts.

An alienist goes into court and swears in favor of the side that has retained him. Out of one set of symptoms he will erect a perfect case of insanity for any sane person able to pay the fee. The opposing alienist will take the same symptoms and construe them as complete proof of a sound mentality. It is possible that one or the other is deceived. It is probable that one or the other is deliberately lying.

The Rev. B. F. Lamb of Ohio affirms that Will Hays has been employed by the moving picture people for political purposes and not to clean up the movies. Evidently the would-be censors, who saw their prospective jobs fade away when Hays took charge, are still a little sore. If Hays as a factor in the movies is in politics, it is certain that the Rev. Lamb also is there, and that he has no better right than Mr. Hays to be there. Every American citizen has the constitutional privilege of being in politics, a movie director in this respect having equal standing with a preacher. Perhaps Mr. Lamb believes that Mr. Hays is trespassing, for what the minister really means is "You get out of politics; I'm in politics myself."

WATCHING THE PARADE

BY JOHN PILGRIM

Just as I get some rule nicely imbedded in my thinking mechanism—like "Honesty is the best policy," or "Economy is the road to wealth"—something comes along to throw doubt on it. Maybe that is not the right way to phrase my meaning. I do not doubt that honesty is best and that economy wins, but there are times when my interpretation of the rule may differ from that of my neighbor's.

"Jimmy Hoag," said my wife two years ago, "is ruining himself."

Being an obedient husband, within limits, I looked up Jimmy and made a few representations. He heard me with a non-committal smile and I went away disheartened.

"Young fool," I said to Mrs. P. "Just because he has married a smart, pretty girl he is trying to break into society."

When we first knew him he was a husky, hard-working, intelligent, almost brilliant young man, but he was as green as a roasting ear. His folks had never had anything in the Missouri townlet in which they lived. Jimmy had probably never seen a dinner jacket except on some vaudeville actor when he went into St. Louis. He did not know how to manage his hands or his feet and his clothes were atrocious and he did not know it, and he had no more small talk than a fish. But his mind kept right on hitting on six. Then he got married and the trouble began.

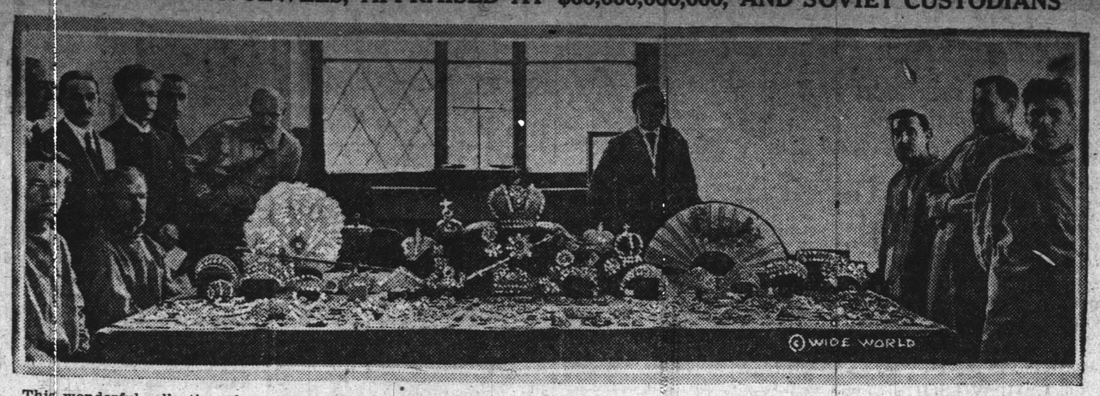
"Jimmy's got some new clothes," I used to report to Mrs. P. "And an evening suit and a dinner jacket and golf rigs and everything."

I bullied the bank cashier into keeping tab on Jimmy's account. It began as a mightly nice little bankroll for a green kid, but it kept going downhill. Checks went to tailors and florists and engravers and the rent bill tripled overnight and a fat one went for a nice little town car. Jimmy was in sight of the bitter end, it seemed to me, when that account began to climb again. Now it is more than decent. It might be called thoroughly respectable.

"I knew it all the time," said Mrs. Pilgrim. "That clever little wife of his brought out his good points and smoothed down his bad ones and introduced him into the right sort of society. What if it did cost money? It was the best possible investment."

But she did not know it all the time. It was Mrs. P. who got me all stirred up about Jimmy Hoag.

RUSSIAN CROWN JEWELS, APPRAISED AT $60,000,000,000, AND SOVIET CUSTODIANS



This wonderful collection of gems is now in the hands of the Soviet government in a building near Moscow, the very location of which is kept secret except to the elect. This is the first photograph of the entire collection. The men grouped about the priceless treasures include the Soviet Treasure Fund Administrators, with Farberger, the French jewel expert, who made the official valuation quoted above. He stands second from the left. The besmocked peasant guards, constantly on duty within and without the building, also are shown.

UNION EMPLOYES OF EMPIRE CHINA COMPANY OF BURBANK JOIN NATIONAL STRIKE TODAY

All Efforts to Reach Agreement Between Employers and Union Pottery Workers Fail, According to Definite Word Received Friday

AFFECTS MORE THAN 100 EMPLOYES HERE

Both Sides Predicting Success, Employers Saying Strikers Will Be Back Within Week; Union Seeking Increase of 7 Per Cent

Quietness reigned at the Empire china factory at Burbank today as employes of that company went on strike.

More than 100 employes of the Empire China company of Burbank are directly affected by the country-wide strike called for Saturday by the national leaders of the pottery workers' union, all attempts to settle the expected strike before the time limit was up having been unavailing.

Officially, the strike was effective at midnight Saturday, the two-year contract between the employers and the union ending at that time, but in reality the strike became effective at the usual quitting time on Saturday.

Both sides were predicting success yesterday, both in Burbank and at the Eastern plants, according to word received in the city.

The cause of the walk-out is due to the failure of the employers to grant a 7 per cent wage increase, according to both parties.

That the strike will not last more than one week was the prediction made yesterday by I. R. Lampis, who was in charge of the Empire China company's activities yesterday due to the absence of Superintendent Jackson, who is indisposed with a slight illness.

On the other hand, the union men claim that their demands are only fair and that they will remain out until the 7 per cent increase is granted.

A vote on whether they will remain out until the increase is granted, or if they will sign a new agreement at the old wage scale is to be taken throughout the country early next week, it was said.

A few weeks ago a vote on the matter resulted in more than two-thirds of the members of the union voting to strike unless the employers met the demands of the union.

It is said that the employers offered the employes better working conditions, but would not grant an increase in wages.

According to Mr. Lampis, an agreement between the employers and the union heads was signed two years ago, at which time a 17 per cent reduction in wages of the union workers was made, the reduction being in keeping with the general wage reductions of workers throughout the country following the war period.

At the same time the factory owners decreased the price of their wares 75 per cent, Mr. Lampis said.

With the two-year agreement nearing an end, the union men decided that they wanted an increase of 7 per cent, which the owners refuse to agree to, Mr. Lampis said.

"We have stood pat and we are going to stand pat," declared Mr. Lampis, who also stated that he is of the opinion that the workers here are merely obeying orders of their union leaders in striking, but that in reality they would prefer to continue at work.

The union workers claim that they got the worst of the deal when the 17 per cent reduction was made two years ago.

They say that when a vote on the matter was made before the contract was agreed to two years ago, the union men thought that the 17 per cent reduction would apply to the pre-war scale and not to the scale paid during the war.

While the union men did not cite an example, the basis of their contention might be explained by an example as follows:

If John Doe was making $100 per month and was granted a 50 per cent increase his pay would be $150 a month, and then if he was reduced 50 per cent in pay his wages would be only $75 per month in case that the 50 per cent reduction applied to the $150 salary, but if applied to the original $100 salary, it would revert back to $100.

This 17 per cent reduction between the owners and the pottery workers applied to the wages after the increase was granted, the local union leaders stated.

Declaring that the union has only a small sum of money in their treasury, the employers claim that it will be only a short time until the men will be willing to sign an agreement at the present scale.

Word that a vote among the union men is to be taken during the coming week was received at the local plant Friday.

Up until yesterday afternoon hopes were held out that a peaceful settlement might be made, but the efforts of the leaders of both factions to reach an agreement failed, according to word received here.

While it was generally rumored that there would be a strike of the union pottery workers for several days, no statements were made by either side.

Business for the Empire China company here during this month has been extra good, according to Mr. Lampis.

"Despite the rumors of a strike, we have done more business this month than we did last; buyers are crowding us right now," he asserted.

Anticipating an early settlement of the strike, Mr. Landis said that the local company would not be handicapped by the strike in meeting orders.

The wages of the union workers here average about $6 per day, according to one of the workers.

The rate of increase granted the workers during the war period ranged from 50 to 60 per cent, it was stated, the pay of the workers at that time ranging from $7 to $10 daily.

President's Sister Loses to Veteran

Mrs. Heber H. Votaw, sister of President Harding, is among the first victims of the veterans' fight against the employment of married women in the Veterans' Bureau. Mrs. Votaw, who had been employed there at $3,500 a year, has been transferred to the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, where she will look after the welfare of several thousand women and girls employed there. Her husband is superintendent of federal prisons.

KYNE STORY IN T. D. & L. FILM TODAY

Peter B. Kyne, the author of countless heroic novels and stories which have appeared in the Saturday Evening Post, wrote the story of "Kindred of the Dust," produced by Raoul A. Walsh for Associated First National release, and which is now at the T. D. and L. theatre.

In this instance Mr. Kyne's story is one of the strongest ever filmed. The chief character is "Nan of the Sawdust Pile," and the part is played by Miriam Cooper, who won considerable praise for her work in "The Oath," "Sere ie" and other recent First National attractions.

Playing opposite her is Ralph Graves, one of the most talented of screen actors. Due to the high character of his work in this production, it is understood that he will be elevated to stardom within the near future. Others in the cast are Lionel Belmore, Eugenie Besserer, W. J. Ferguson and Pat Rooney.

The Great Northwest is the locale of the story, and the camera's eye has caught many exciting and breath-taking scenes.

The Fatal Faux Pas

By JOHN BRECK

Any wise old Nester will warn you that to fly in the face of conventions is as foolish as trying to migrate into a head wind—you just waste your wings. What are conventions for, anyway? Just look at last spring's fledglings, all setting up their families this season, without a mite of experience. Don't they manage all right so long as they have sense enough to do "the proper thing?"

If ever you are tempted to retort that the old ways can be improved upon—don't. A bird never knows where to stop. Take the sly little hen who blew into my neighbor's workshop when a tornado of a wind was turning up all the leaves and letting in the rain on the poor perchers who cowed beneath them. She was smart enough to appreciate patent roofing. A window, guiltless of panes, suited her coming and goings; a bag of chick feed stood hospitably open. This was to keep the rats from gnawing through the burlap, but rats were not, as yet, in her scheme of things.

Another bag was obviously a nest in the making. It had oyster shell in its toe, and its top was rolled down as a flapper wears her stockings. She filled it in with a springy mattress of curled shavings and dried leaves from the rubbish pile outside. Then she wove a cover lid to keep her eggs from rolling down among them. Its warp was of wiry rootlets, horsehair and fine split grass; tufts of fur she deftly quilted in, and of feathers—any other than her own. She did not sign the work of her beak and claws, and she kept adroitly out of sight while the work was going on.

But we knew who she was, all the same. For her final touch was snakeskin. One tiny tube, some squirming's baby clothes, was wreathed into the edge, while a patch from the old gopher hunter in the garden made the center medallion. She was a vireo, of course. No flycatcher is that tame. And who else uses such trimming?

Who else indeed? We were slow a-learning. For no speckled egg ever lay in this elaborate bassinet of a bird's embroidering. Was she afraid to settle down? Or were the rats stealing them? She had not gone, for spilled glue-pots and scattered nails showed she was still pursuing her investigations. Still the High Gods of Birds spared her to commit her ultimate defiance of feathered traditions, her crowning indiscretion—she poked her head into a mouse-trap to steal the cheese! And—— She wasn't a vireo at all; she was a waxwing! The most mannerly and conservative of all bird families—but isn't that just the sort who wander farthest amiss when they do stray?

PLANTING RAPE

"Rape is best adapted to a cool growing season, and largest yields are obtained in moist, rich soils," says Prof. E. G. Schafer of the farm crops department at the State College of Washington, replying to a query from a Lamont farmer who wants to plant rape for hog pasture, and asked the best kind for that vicinity, and the time of planting.

"Rape is generally planted in the spring, except in districts having mild winters. It is a biennial plant, and may be planted in the fall where it will survive the winter. In the south fall sowing is said to be most satisfactory.

"Dwarf Essex rape is a variety most generally used. In common with other plants of the cabbage type, rape is frequently attacked by the cabbage aphis. This insect occurs so generally that it practically prevents the successful production of rape in eastern Washington."

WHITE YOLO

Farmers and dealers are manifesting a widespread interest in White Yolo. Approximately 38,000 acres in thirty-two counties of California were planted to this crop in the spring of 1922. the seed being sent out from the University farm. The seed produced from this area will make possible a greatly increased acreage next spring.

Don't Be Fooled

"FOOL me once," says the proverb, "and it's shame on you. Fool me twice and it's shame on me."

Don't be fooled when it comes to spending your money. Patronize the merchants who have a reputation for fair dealing and honesty. Such motives must actuate the consistent advertiser. The man who invests real money in building a reputation for himself and his merchandise cannot afford to risk any of it by taking unfair advantage of his patrons.

The consistent advertiser pays money to tell you about his goods. He knows they are good—he backs them with his money because he believes they will satisfy. Only merchandise which is consistently good can be consistently advertised.

So advertising protects you against fraud and inferiority. It tells you what is new and good, making you a wise buyer. It saves you money by pointing out for your consideration only the best products and the best places to buy them.

Thrifty men and women read the advertisements. To them it is a plain everyday business proposition—a duty they owe to themselves and to their pocketbooks.

Don't be fooled.

Don't spend your money blindly

UNPAID LUXURY TAX DEMANDED OF GUN CLUBS

Reports from Northern California Internal Revenue District that approximately one hundred wealthy gun clubs in San Francisco, Sacramento and Oakland are threatened with possible extinction through a raid on them for unpaid luxury taxes since 1918, reached Los Angeles yesterday.

It is understood that the tax applies to fees and dues which in some cases runs up to $10,000 for each member in addition to penalties and interest. The tax on one gun club which has an initiation fee of $10,000 for each of its 60 members is said to approximate $100,000.

Collector Rex Goodcell said yesterday that the situation regarding unpaid taxes of gun clubs which prevails in Northern California does not exist here. While there are approximately one hundred gun clubs liable to federal taxes in the Southern California district, the collector said that the taxes were well in hand and no large amounts were outstanding. Organizers of gun clubs which carry initiation fees and dues are advised to consult with Collector Goodcell regarding their tax liability.

OBSERVATIONS OF AN OLD TIMER

In these days of efficiency and everything "down to the minute," the amusements of school children are regulated by the school laws or by custom that is as rigid as the law. Games are played according to set rules. When I was a school boy, all was different. I can still see in my mind's eye that old brick, 3-story school building near the center of a beautiful little city in Illinois, near the Wabash river. It stood in the midst of a city block and was surrounded by mighty oak and hickory trees, some of them four feet in diameter. Beneath their wide-spreading branches the little girls would have their doll houses and yards, where they played happily at recess and before and after school. The larger girls would play ball and they became quite expert. They had no rules and thought nothing of waiting till the ball came and then, turning around, batting it far to the rear of the home plate. When boys and girls played in the same game this always made the boys mad, as they could never, try as they would, succeed in this style of batting, even though they used the same 6-inch wide paddle the girls used, as a bat. Blackman was a favorite game with both boys and girls and "crack the whip" was indulged in quite a bit. In the early spring marbles and tops occupied the boys up to 16 years of age and many of them developed into expert gamblers by playing marbles and tops for keeps. It was wonderful what good shots were developed in both these games. When the tops were grouped in the center of the inner circle, the first shot by a skillful spinner would scatter them far and wide. Successive single shots would "peg" them out of the big circle. But the game of all games for the big boys after the ball season was over, and often before its end, was football and this lasted far into the winter, interrupted only by snow and mud. And they played real football in those days, not handball and carryball, as it seems today to us oldtimers. There was the kickoff and then the ball was kicked back toward the goal, which was the fence surrounding the grounds. The two sides kicked most earnestly to land the ball against one of the fences, which meant a win. And some of the big boys were not very particular whether they kicked the ball or someone's shins. It was against the rules to carry the ball. One could pick it up if it went out of bounds and bat it back into play with his fist, throwing it in the air for that purpose, but carrying it even the shortest distance was forbidden. Don't some of you oldtimers, here in Glendale, remember this style of playing football?

Nearly, if not quite, a thousand years ago, when crusades to wrest the Holy City from the grasp of the Islamite were launched at intervals, there grew up a powerful order called "Knights of the Holy Temple," or Templars, as they are called in Ivanhoe and other books dealing with that period of history. The members were poor and lowly, keeping strictly their vows of poverty, chastity, celibacy and service to the oppressed. The device shown on their shields was of two knights riding on one horse. But the order grew strong and powerful. Wicked, licentious and unscrupulous men became leaders and in the day of Richard the Lion Heart, the Templars had become a menace to more than one throne. Scott fairly depicts this phase of their character in "Ivanhoe." The Templars finally became so arrogant that a concerted effort was made by European monarchs, and they were utterly destroyed. But it was their own arrogance and disregard of the rights of others that led to their downfall. The rank and file of union labor organizations should study the history of this order. The unions have accomplished a mighty work for the benefit of the laboring man. They have secured him living wages, better home life and more independence of action. The downfall of union labor would be a calamity to the nation. But it will surely come unless the rank and file, who are, by a large majority, conscientious and law-abiding, shake off the domination of the radical and criminal element that in so many cases have seized the reins of leadership. The awful revelations of murder, extortion and sabotage in Chicago and other large cities, the massacre at Herrin, Ill., and the putting again in office of McNamara, the murderer of 20 innocent workmen, are heavy handicaps to union labor's advancement. Very few strikes have ever been won by violence. It is the earnest hope of all true friends of union labor that the honest, conscientious workers, who constitute so large a majority of the membership, rid themselves of the incubus of the criminals, most of them foreigners, who have usurped leadership.

Never in the history of fast-growing Glendale has there been so much street work in progress and there are many needed projects of this kind still waiting. Peter Ferry's plan for the improvement of the wash should be linked up with the extension of Monterey road from Verdugo road west to Burbank.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Pearson of 644 East Harvard recently received a letter from a daughter-in-law, living in St. Louis, who had been enjoying a vacation in northeastern New Mexico, 60 miles south of Trinidad, Colorado. She had been stopping on a great ranch of 7500 acres, which a Chicago millionaire bought a few years ago and made an earthly paradise of, building three large, beautiful homes, side by side, in the center of this acreage and surrounding them with a wealth of shrubbery, shade and fruit trees and beautiful effects in landscape gardening. The center dwelling, prepared for the owners' occupancy, was most lavishly furnished, the appointments of one room alone, including furniture, tapestries, rugs and pictures, costing over $40,000. The other two residences were for the ranch owners' sons. But alas! the same year in which the ranch was brought to perfection, with residences completed, fish and game preserves established, and winding roads, trees and paths completed, the father and both sons died, and now "Vermejo" is in the hands of an agent, who will sell it the the first good opoprtunity. Alas, for the vanity of human hopes of unalloyed pleasure!

I often wonder if we working people are getting all out of life that we ought to in this land of transcendent charm and beauty. We do not have as long hours of work and we do have many holidays, yet nearly all of us live at higher tension and many are nervous wrecks at 60, when they should find life most enjoyable. When I was a boy of 15 I got up at 4:30, winter and summer, whether on the farm or in the store. In winter, when clerking in a grocery, I got to the store at 4:30, so as to build fires to have the building thoroughly warm at opening time. I stayed till 9 every night and 10 on Saturdays. Often I delivered goods a mile or more from the store when the mercury was at zero and below. Yet I was healthy and happy, and nerves were unknown. Closing the store on the Fourth, Thanksgiving day, or even Christmas, was unheard of. Still we survived. Now the grocery clerk works from 7 till 6 and a little later on Saturday. Every excuse for a holiday is taken advantage of and the beach claims him many a Sunday. Yet he keeps going at high tension and I don't believe is as happy or contented as we were in the slow, lazy no-holiday times.

Many people object to the real estate agent making a commission on the sale of property and resent it as a personal injury if the place of property transferred to someone else at a fair or large profit is resold in a few weeks by the purchaser at a marked advance in price. But if all property owners held on to their places so as to get all of the advance in price, there would be no advance. It is only the continual turning over of property that brings an advance. Here is a case in point: Less than a year ago a Glendale resident was approached by an agent with an offer to sell him a certain piece of property. The price asked was $10,000, but the proposed purchaser had not the money. Another man bought it at that price. Later the first man found himself in position to buy the coveted property, but in the few months which had elapsed the price had risen to $15,000 and he managed to secure it for $14,500. Doubtless he would ask $20,000 for it now. Had there been no sale of this or other Glendale property in those few months it is very improbable that there would have been any advance in price. The moral is, get the best price you can for your property and be satisfied, no matter what profit the other fellow subsequently makes on it.

Alfalfa hay has recently advanced $7 a ton in price, with prospects of further rises in the near future. What has caused this? I have a solution to advance and you can judge for yourselves whether or not it is correct. I think this "citifying" of the entire country by laying out new subdivisions by the score is so restricting the area of cultivated lands that the supply of feed and forage is seriously menaced. Vast stretches of acreage formerly planted to beans, melons, alfalfa, oats, wheat, etc., are now city lots. The big advance in price of these lands causes a corresponding increase in the valuation of ranch lands adjoining and the rent of these is placed so high that produce raised on them must sell higher. We will be in a sorry plight for sustenance for man and beast when the whole southland becomes one vast city, which seems to be the present aim of the subdividers, for then we'll have to import all the necessities of life from great and then greater distances.

OLD PROVERBS

If he hates me, that harms me not at all,
If I hate him, that turns my thoughts to gall.

I tipped a barb with poison in its sting,
It poisoned me when I made taut the string.

Greed came at my request to dine and sup
On others' foods and straightway ate me up.

Who hath an empty heart and cold is worse
In poverty than he with empty purse.

He flingeth fire the tinder piles among
Who hath not learned to check an angry tongue

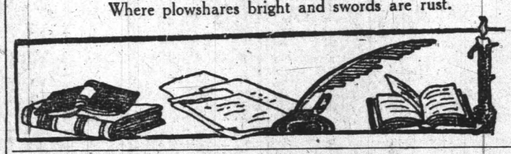
Sharpen the sword to punish if thou walt,
Then bid fair Mercy break it at the hilt.

Shun prejudice if thou wilt be the just,
The clear eye reddens with one grain of dust.

Sweet water many a traveler brings,
For men avoid the bitter springs.

I told a lie and ere the day was done
Not all the lies of earth sustained that one.

They have learned love and conquered lust
Where plowshares bright and swords are rust.



DR. CRIST SHOWS WAY TO BIGGER CHRISTIANITY

Dr. C. M. Crist preached to a large and appreciative audience Sunday morning on the theme, "Becoming Bigger Christians." The text selected was Jude 20: "Building up yourselves on your most holy faith." Dr. Crist said in part:

"Many of those who are theoretically American in their theology are living out a practical Calvinism. Multitudes in their thinking and in their conduct make God responsible for their success or their failures. The day has come when religion should be put on a natural basis and certain definite rules given for spiritual development.

"Among the first things to be recognized," said Dr. Crist, "is human responsibility. We must learn that evil (moral disease) is to be resisted just as the tendency to bodily disease is resisted. To combat diseases of the body one is taught that he must improve his general health. Contagions are often entirely escaped by those who are in robust health. The reason so many church members are so susceptible to all kinds of religious fads or fancies is that their spiritual vitality is running low. We need to hear again Jude's message and start in definitely to build up a strong spirituality on the most holy faith.

"When this ancient writer became conscious of the fact that heresies were creeping into the church that imperiled its very existence, he did not counsel an aggressive warfare, but he urged each believer to strengthen his own spiritual life. He did not say, tear down someone else, or fight some 'ism,' but he did say 'build up yourselves.'

"We do well to note that it is possible for the soul's dimensions to become decreased by ill-use or non-use until it becomes a mere pigmy, and is at the mercy of every foe. It is likewise gloriously possible to enlarge one's spiritual nature and capacity and thus become comparatively immune to all disease.

"This matter of soul-building," said Dr. Crist, "is one of supreme importance. The first consideration of course is a sufficient foundation. This Jude says is 'your most holy faith.' Paul, in speaking of the same thing, says it is Jesus Christ; 'other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ.' In the last analysis these writers are saying the same thing; the one speaks subjectively and the other objectively.

After the foundation there is the whole process of building. It is a gradual process, 'stone upon stone.' When conversion takes place it is not the finishing of something, it is the beginning. There is a whole life-time of building.

"There is no easy method. There is an absolute demand on every moment. The process of building up a soul is the living every day as Jesus Christ would have us live.

"There must be the material for the building, the effort of the workman, and with it all an intelligence and an understanding of the job, if there is to be produced finally, that soul character that will stand the test of the wreck of matter and the crash of worlds."

Tennis Star Has Gone to Work

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—After spending several years cleaning up nearly everything on the tennis court, Vincent Richards, the Fordham youngster, has gone to work.

He has entered the steel business here with his brother and if it becomes necessary, he is going to give up tennis.

"Competition in tennis has cost me a lot of money," Richards says. "I have wasted valuable time that I might have applied to better advantage in some line of business. I liked the sport and enjoyed traveling around, but you can't live on tennis.

"If my brother will give me a month off in the summer, I'll enter the national championships every year, but if he objects I will have to retire from the game."

Lew Tendler, the Philadelphia lightweight, who gave Benny Leonard such a great fight recently, is showing signs of slipping.

Bad hands, the worst of all troubles for boxers, make it appear that he is through as a championship prospect.

In a fight recently with Ever Hammer, the Chicago Swede, Tendler banged up his left hand so badly that he had to call off several good fights.

Once bad, always bad, seems to be the rule with a fighter's hand, especially when the accidents happen to the old socking fist.

Tendler had a fine chance to become the champion—if Leonard would ever consent to work with him to a decision. He has a profitable business in Philadelphia and he has made almost as much out of the game as Leonard has.

Zenzo Shimizv, the Japanese tennis star, has one of the "softest" services in the game. He does not get the speed back of the service that nearly all the young American girls do. He explains that when he started playing in Japan they all played doubles and that one player did all the serving and that he always preferred to play at the net. The result is that his service is way behind all his other strokes and he may never reach the fine point that most Americans develop first in their game.

Little Helen Wills, the California school girl, is one of the strongest of the girl players. She broke into the game playing with boys around the Berkeley club and she found if she wanted to win, she had to play just as hard as her opponents and she developed a very virile game.

Johnny Buff, recently deposed bantamweight and flyweight champion, was one of the real marvels of the ring. He won both titles at the age of thirty-four after a long, hard struggle to get to the top.

Soon after winning the title he developed gland trouble in his neck. He had to submit to expensive operations and was forced to put away the gloves just when he was in a position to get some large financial returns for his services.

He fought and lost to Joe Lynch because he was too game to admit that he was not in shape to fight and he accepted the challenge of Pancho Villa and again lost when he could have refused to fight.

All champions are not like Buff.

BUSINESS INVADES LOMITA AVENUE

Lomita avenue, heretofore an exclusive residential street, is being invaded by the inexorable march of business. Work has begun on the erection of a building to house a battery station, with accompanying oil filling devices, at the northeast corner of Lomita and Central, just across from the site of the soon-to-be-erected second church of Christ, Scientist.

REVIVAL IS SUCCESS

The special revival campaign of the Nazarene tent on Glendale avenue near Broadway is meeting with success. Evangelist E. A. Clark, formerly district superintendent of the Iowa district, is preaching the old-time gospel with power.

Brother Hull and his wife of Pasadena are expected to sing Sunday night. On that day there will be Sunday school at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, with preaching at 3 and 7:30 o'clock p. m. Everyone in Glendale is invited to attend any and all of these meetings.
